Insurance Institute of India, Mumbai

Classroom Training Session on Strategic Selling in Life Insurance (CT-SSLI) (On: 11th September, 2024)

Program Concept and Objectives:

Life insurance selling is considered one of the most challenging professions in the world. Apart from the basic nature of product being intangible it is often the last priority amongst competing needs of the individual. Many individuals do not, in fact, consider the same as a need even as one juggles to fulfil present needs out of their limited resources and so is do not venture into the realm of future needs, especially arising out of unforeseen event of his/her ceasing to exist in this mortal world. The very thought of their not being there does not inspire one to go for insurance, rather he/she keeps avoiding the subject and, therefore, a need is felt for someone in between, who has to skillfully persuade and influence the person to make him/her realize that insurance is one amongst basic needs of an individual and this someone's role is played by the Insurance Advisor.

Successful Insurance Sales persons discover and master over a period, a unique style and approach to in their profession to create positive impact on the Prospects and create a sense of urgency impelling them to take action to manage their risks through insurance. Keeping this background in view, COI has designed this one day classroom program where participants can benefit themselves with experience sharing by successful insurance salespersons of different segments as to how they were able to convince the individuals about their need for insurance and how those who were avoiding even to listen to the word "insurance" have not only bought insurance but also became advocates for insurance for others, considering the same as social service.
